The Mexican wasp is built entirely for business. He is over two inches long when he is of age, and is about the colour of a bay horse. His plunger is a full inch long, and as fine as a spider's web. Unlike the stinger of a common bee, the stinger of the Mexican wasp is nonforfeitable. He does not give up after one lunge, but has it always in readiness for an all-day job seems to be marely to hunt up people and run that stinger of his into them. The natives say whack at a person. The natives seem to get fat Bours (New)$530 on snake bites, centipede bites, and scorpion atings, but if they discover one of these wasps in the neighbourhood, they hunt for cover without delay.

Much has been written on the climate of Mexico: Too much cannot be said on its behalf. In the city, at an altitude of 4.500 feet, there is no chimney in sight and fire are almost un-known to any save the dusky tals who bend over the charcoal braziers of the kitchen. The mean average of the mercury for about eight On Paris. years, summer and winter, shows 60 deg. Fabr. The limits are 34 deg.—89 deg. The air is dry a foreigner finds himself disqualified by this rarefaction for any extraordinary exertion, yet it gives him a particularly busyant, champagnelike feeling. Rain generally falls each afternoon rom June to October, and the next day's sun i shines through the freshest and purest of atmospheres. Mexico's streets, however, are very dirty, and it needs an exceptional pogity overhead to counterast the dirt underfoot.

When Judge Haskell was new to the bench (asys a Lewiston, U.S., paper he was accosted during a term of court by a vouerable old farmer juryman, who desired to show his friendliness Jedge," said he, "I'm an old man, and have had more experience in court matters than you have. We cannot say if this Samarkand-Sherahad line has been actually commenced, but its strategic importance is so great that, the Russians are not likely to delay very long over its construction. It would enable a force drawn from Samarakand and Tashkend to move down into the Oxus Valley in two or three days, and the pessage of the river would present no great difficulties, particularly if a second force were co-operating from the direction of Kerki. When war comes in Europe, as it must come gun in the art of destruction. The Belgian historian, Emile de Laveleye, sums up în au article in the Forum for October the terrible nature of the nort conflict. The Civil Way in the United States was but child's play in comparison. With Russia and France on one side and Germany, Austria and Italy on the other, seven millions of men can be instantly put in the field, with ten millions in reserve. The facilities for concentration and the improved arms are such that more men Shanghai Water. may be easily killed in one day than have ever before been killed in a whole war. The continuous preparations for war, even when there is no thought of its immediate occurrence, are far greater and more expensive than ever before. France has surrounded her frontiers and her capital with a continuous line of forts and entrenchments. Garmany has made Meta Strasburg, Mayonce, and Cologne gigantic fortresses, which seem absolutely imprognable. Italy has fortified her Alpine passes, her seaports, and even the Eternal City itself. Belgium is spending 40,000,000f in the coustruction of redoubts with eppoles of steel, to close the passage by the Muss Valley. The war budgete are everywhere increasing in enormous proportions. "And it is under this continual monace of the most frightful shock of armies that our planet will ever have looked apon," says M. de Luveleye, "that we live. And the most extraordinary thing is, that we get used to it. We go shout our business our pleasures; we rush in crowds from all parts to the Paris Exhibition,
